3. A brief description.

My group and I are thinking on creating a small version of E-campus. It is still that we are still brainstorming but as of right now that's the idea. We plan on doing a full stack project where we would be using html, css and javascript for the front end and Flask, python and Mysql on the back end. As mentioned before, this is what we are going for as for right now, but it can change. And if does, we will let the instructor know about our changes.

4. Suggestions, comments.

The one thing I would like to tell you is that we are not sure yet if that's exactly what we are going to do. If we plan on changing anything, we will talk to the instructor about it and get some feedback.
